REVIEW OF CARRIER ULTRA XTC MANUAL

- As others have said in their reviews, GWTW is a great book. To repeat all the reasons why would be quite redundant of me. Simply, I recommend GWTW if one wants to discover the white southern female point of view concerning the Civil War era American south. I also recommend Harriet Jacobs' "Incidents in the Life of a Slave Girl" to anyone BRAVE enough to discover the black southern female slave point of view concerning the Civil War era American south. Seeing as GWTW is very long, and Ms. Jacobs' work is around 200 pages, I'd read "Incidents" first. It's another truly amazing literary work...an account of southern slavery from the pen of a former slave herself! There is much much interesting information concerning the relationship between mistress and female slave/house attendant that will provoke thought as one reads GWTW afterwards.

- Margaret Mitchell's timeless classic,

Gone With the Wind, is a book about young, Scarlett O'hara, who is madly in love with another woman's husband. She struggles through the hardships of the Civil War, supporting herself and her family. Her story is one of the strongest I have ever read. I recommend this book to everyone-it has just the right amount of romance, sadness, and truth in it to make it one of the greatest books.
