REVIEW OF FASHION BUYING FROM TREND FORECASTING TO SHOP FLOOR BASICS FASHION MANAGEMENT

- Robinson Crusoe has always been Dafoe best known work but in my opinion Moll Flanders is far superior piece of literature. We follow Moll throughout her life of poverty, five marriages, live in crime and at last she finds lasting happiness or contentment. That, of course, is brought about her repentance for the "wicked" life she had led. The novel is written in a format that Moll tells her story in the first person to the audience of a journalist. If this was a movie the format would be best described as a "Mocumentary". The language is at times difficult but for anyone who has read Shakespeare or other literature from that time it should not be an obstacle. If this story would be published today with contemporary characters it would in all likelihood be considered pulp fiction but Moll Flanders is anything but.

- This is a great book filled with incredible surprises. It is definitely one of Gary Paulson's best works. It is about a thirteen-year-old boy named Mark who goes on a solo camping trip on a missile range. Mark is transported to another world which is sparsely populated with strange animals that are different combinations of different animals. At first Mark thinks it is another world and there are no other humans. But he meets many tribes of humans. These humans, different from humans like Mark are also smaller than he is. Mark gets through his teenage years first as a slave, then as a hero, then a lover and finishes a warrior. The only thing I didn't like about this book is that the book jacket says he finds startling powers. These are not the powers you think they are, but you'll have to find out for yourself. This is a great book-- one of the best ever!
