REVIEW OF PHARMACEUTICAL STATISTICS PRACTICAL AND CLINICAL APPLICATIONS

• Phil Valentine's "Right from the Heart" is a fascinating book. He writes in a way to meet the intellectual needs and address the frustration and anger that exist in the citizenry because of what we see going on in our cities, communities, schools and legal system around the country and in the world. I particularly enjoyed the way this book is set out and the idea of just going through the alphabet the way he did. Although I am sure he limited himself and his issues by doing so; because one could get four or five of these books out and address a completely different set of important alphabetical issues each time. To be honest I had a few disagreements with some of his assertions, for instance I believe strongly and completely in the implementation of the death penalty in a timely fashion, not as a deterrent but as a necessary, beneficial and justifiable punishment for anyone who commits crimes against the well being of society. He seems to think life imprisonment is the cure all. I do not, under "Ledbetter's Law" you would get two chances on your first adult crime you would get rehabilitation, under the second you would spend time in jail or prison, but on your third conviction it would be the "end of the road jack." You see I believe that every citizen has a right to those basic assumptions and assurances indicated in the preamble to the Constitution of the United States of America. Anyone who twice takes them away from another citizen has thereby forfeited his protection under that same constitution. Anyone who uses a weapon in the commission of a crime or sells drugs to our kids or kidnaps or murders or abuses anyone in the commission of a criminal act has likewise deprived a deserving citizen of those same assurances; and regardless of their ridiculously invented sociological or hereditary excuse they deserve punishment for it. Naturally the Good Samaritan and one who does so in self-defense or for the protection of property would be exempted. As a matter of fact I would have to sit down with Phil and address several of his immigration assertions, education ideals, union theories and quite a few other comments and rebuttals. Yet he is on the right track to identify the issues he does and he has put voice to the concerns of the true "grass roots" American and the "Average American" who rarely sees their concerns and fears addressed in today's political arena where it is simply attack, attack and attack, again and again everyone else on a personal level. Most of these politicians have no idea of how average Americans feel, what they need and want and even if they do it is still their way or the highway. They sit in their rich homes, live their protected lives, with servants and pompous luxury and pretend to feel our pain, but they do not see that they and their faltering philosophies and policies are the cause of it. All in all I found Mr. Valentine to have made good use of the alphabet to address the many pressing issues of our present unique American social situation and conditions. I comment him on writing an easily readable, to the point, informative book without a lot of needless verbiage attached. Highly recommend it to the brave of heart who want to know what "most intelligent, ethical and patriotic American's" are thinking about these days. 571
