REVIEW OF PROJECT TIC TAC TOE CSIZONA

- Main Idea: The seas and oceans around the world hold many truly wondrous things to us if you look for them. Summary: In 1866, a naturalist called M. Arronax departs with his friend and servant Conseil on a journey to kill a "narwhal" that has been sinking ships across the globe. They travel on a boat called the Abraham Lincoln, which is sailed by Captain Farragut. There they meet Ned Land, a master harpooner. The Abraham Lincoln is hit, and Ned, M. Arronax and Conseil are launched into the sea. Ned surprisingly lands on the supposed narwhal, hence discovering it is made of iron and therefore is a submarine vessel. The three men are taken aboard, only to find that they are prisoners there. Yet M. Arronax and Conseil find it pleasant to see a submarine world. But even they yearn for freedom. Swim with them in this watery book! Opinions: 1. This amazing book tells a tale of adventure with a subsurface of mystery. There are ocean bottoms hit and secrets kept, poles reached and mysteries left unsolved. What really kept me going while reading this book was the sheer anticipation of what was yet to come. It is wonderful material for people like me to get their hands on. I like to learn a little bit about the world while still reading a book that is fictionous and fun to read. For example, it talked about the main characters going inside an extinct volcano while describing the chamber of the volcano in explicit detail. 2. The book tells the reader a bit about what life was like 1866 while still being an adventure-themed and fun to read book. It described many daring actions and risks, while still giving facts on geography I never even knew about. It told me about how a boat was run back then and also spoke about some species of fish through Conseil's classification. 3. Jules Verne never explained why the title mentioned 20,000 leagues. The Nautilus never went farther than 4000 leagues down under the waves. 4. I believe that this book is meant for people ages 10+ because some of the things in there might not be comprehensible to a person aged 9 or lower. Recommendation I would recommend this book to people wanting to be oceanographers because it talks about some things you may not have known about the sea. Unearth more details in this 1866 novel!

- Don't pick up this book!... if you're content with mediocrity in life. But if you are dissatisfied, willing, thirsty, there is something powerful about the dangerously transformative path described in these pages. Steve Korch is a master craftsman and communicator, who serves as our tour guide on this journey toward recapturing the essence of experiencing the very presence of God. He deftly brushes off the road signs that are too-often covered by the overgrown tangle of our religiosity, clearing our path toward real intimacy, joy and passion with Christ. There is something about the way Steve writes that resonates with the deep places of the soul; he masterfully peels back the layers so that God can chip away at the stony crust around the heart, to finally uncover and quench our deepest thirst in the One who loves us most, and who longs to be known by us. As a pastor, I love passing on a copy of this rich treasure to those who are tired of mere fads and fluff of religion, and yearn to have their thirst genuinely satisfied in a relationship with the living God. As someone simply longing for more of God's presence, this book has guided me through the twists and turns of rediscovering my own intimacy with God and reshaping my understanding and experience of a lifestyle transformed by Christ. I'm so thankful for how the Lord is using Steve's experiences and reflections to breathe truth and life into all who are thirsty for more.
