- I'm in love with this book! I'm interested in the Napoleonic era (so of course swooned over the descriptions of pink butter sauce and light green sauce for the eels at Napoleon's brother's wedding - reflecting the Neoclassical colours that Josephine favored - and the rest), and am also interested in Regency England - so the description and pictures of the feast for the Prince Regent at Brighton Pavillion alone were well worth the price of the book for me (everything else, which is excellent, is icing on the cake) - the cover photo is a partial view of the kitchens at Brighton Pavillion, inside is the full 2-page illustration (there is also a double-page colour illustration of the banqueting rooms at the Royal Pavillion at Brighton, as well as Cruikshank's "High Life Below Stairs" drawing, not to mention many others of high interest). The menus and recipes are simply terrific to have at such an affordable price.

- Great read, truly a reference. Don't expect to read through fast, many points must be gone over to understand the "fundamentals" of TA. Written in a whole nother dialect making the first part of the book tedious but none the less important.
