The Latin course is written entirely in Latin. It consists of two parts: I: Familia Romana -- the fundamental or elementary course. II: Roma Aeterna -- the advanced course, with Indices covering both parts. The direct method is based on the inductive principle of learning. In the text every sentence is intelligible per se, or self-explanatory, because the meaning and function of all new words and grammatical forms are made clear by the context in which they occur, or if necessary, by illustrations or marginal notes using vocabulary already learned. This demands a carefully graded text, but in order to make learning efficient the content should stimulate interest and curiosity and make it easy for the reader to visualise the scenes and situations described. To meet these demands the chapters of Lingua Latina I form a continuous narrative, a sort of Latin novel, which captivates the students so that they look forward to reading the continuation of the story. While reading this story and learning facts about the Roman life and traditions, the students pick up the vocabulary and grammar that will enable them to go on, in Part II, to read a representative selection of Latin literature, both prose and poetry. Here, too, all new words and structures, if not immediately intelligible from the context, are explained by marginal notes or illustrations. In addition, factual information is given in the margin. Part I covers the essentials of Latin grammar and introduces a basic vocabulary of some 1600 words. The 35 chapters form a sequence of scenes and incidents from the life of a Roman family in the second century A.D. Each chapter is divided into 3 or 4 lessons (lectiones) and consists of several text pages followed by a section on grammar, three exercises, and a list of new words. At the end of the volume there is a survey of inflexions, a Roman calendar, and alphabetical word-list and a grammatical index.

For nearly sixty years, Wheelock's Latin has remained the opitmus liber of beginning Latin textbooks. When Professor Frederic M. Wheelock's Latin first appeared in 1956, the reviews extolled its thoroughness, organization, and conciseness; one reviewer predicted that the book "might well become the standard text" for introducing students to elementary Latin. Now, nearly six decades later, that prediction has certainly proved accurate. This new edition of Wheelock's Latin has all of the features, many of them improved and expanded, that have made it the bestselling single-volume beginning Latin textbook: 40 chapters with grammatical explanations and readings drawn from the works of Rome's major prose and verse writers; Self-tutorial exercises, each with an answer key, for independent study; An extensive English-Latin/Latin-English vocabulary section; A rich selection of original Latin readings—unlike other Latin textbooks, which contain primarily made-up texts; Etymological aids, maps, and dozens of images illustrating aspects of the classical culture and mythology presented in the chapter readings. Also included are expanded notes on the literary passages, comments on vocabulary, and translation tips; new comprehension and discussion questions; and new authentic classical Latin readings, including Roman graffiti, in every chapter.

REVIEW OF LINGUA LATINA PER SE ILLUSTRATA TEACHERS MATERIALS

- My decision to read this book was based on its "Nobel Prize" winning status and a desire to expand my knowledge of world literature. I was not disappointed. The fluid writing style of the author seems a bit tricky at first, but as the story unfolds, one recognizes a natural cadence and rhythm which is like the flow of a river through time. Perhaps, the translation from Spanish into English omits some of the cultural milieu, however, the more one reads the more admiration one has for the writing skill and creativity of the author. This story is a fascinating account of the Buendia family who helped found the town of Macondo, somewhere out in the jungle of South America. This family dynasty includes the founding patriarch Jose Arcadio Buendia and thematriarch, Ursula, as well as more modern adventurers, revolutionaries, rebels, and eccentrics both male and female, who express their physical and spiritual natures as they build complex lives and produce the future generations. The family rises to a position of prominence in the region, each generation is tied to the previous one through legends and stories, making the ancestors seem mythical and magical. The extraordinary cast of characters also includes vagabond gypsies who come from the other side of the ocean, describing another world, even Macedonia is mentioned. They bear gifts, such as magnets, and one charismatic figure, Melquiades, carries with him experimental chemicals and alchemy books. He gives demonstrations of his talents. He captures the imagination of Jose Arcadio Buendia, the family patriarch who becomes an amateur scientist. In an unusual creative twist, the book of secrets also becomes a book of knowledge, a book foretelling the future. In a symbolic manner it provides cohesion to the book. At the end, reading about the author's life, one learns how he was influenced by his grandmother who was a master storyteller. She wove fact, fiction and superstition into a magical mythical realm that felt very real to the author when he was a child. This story telling spirit became the impetus, the driving force to write this historical family chronicle. It is filled with love, humor, sadness, rebellion, naivete, adventure, glory, revolution, entrepreneurial success, implusive acts with unexpected consequences and the magnetic appeal of bigger than life characters, both men and women. There is a free verse poetic flow to the writing which is totally captivating and infectious. Most highly recommended reading. Erika Borsos (erikab93)

- What a horrible book; hard to read; too many characters; I never did figure out what the whole thing was about. I can't believe this won a Nobel Prize. Definitely a waste of time reading.
