REVIEW OF STANDOUT THE GROUNDBREAKING NEW STRENGTHS ASSESSMENT FROM THE LEADER OF THE STRENGTHS REVOLUTION

- It must be difficult when you are right, you know you are right, and the rest of the world is wrong. For Edward Abbey you release your frustrations in the form of an endless rant. While the few places he writes about the desert and Arches National Monument (now a National Park), make for a good read, the rants are both endless and idiotic.He rants and rants about letting tourists drive their cars into Arches. He proposes, "No more cars in national parks. . . . [K]eep the automobiles and the motorcycles and their motorized relatives out." Of course he drove into Arches to the house trailer he would be living in while in the park. You can bet the house trailer was towed in by a motorized vehicle. He got a delivery of 500 gallons of water via a tank truck on his first day. He also got a Park Service truck delivered to him to drive. He also got permission to drive the truck to town once a week for supplies. He continues to rant on and on about allowing vehicles into any Nation Parks. He does show his softness by allowing the aged and infirm to be transmitted by shuttle buses. For children too small to be carried in or to ride a bicycle in, he would not permit entering. What a guy! The word hypocrite seems to fit here.He launches into the problems of the Navajo. He provides a simplistic monologue of how they could better them selves. One of his amazing quotes is, "He (referring to the Navajo people) lacks the drive to get ahead of his fellows or to figure out a way and means of profiting from other people's labor." He goes on to suggest solving the problems of the Navajo, "[W]e may soon have to make birth control compulsory." I won't even comment on his solution of the Navajo "problem."Then he suggests that wilderness is necessary. Here is his quote, "We may need it someday not only as a refuge from excessive industrialism but also as a refuge from authoritarian government, from political oppression. Grand Canyon, Big Bend, Yellowstone and the High Sierras may be required to function as bases for guerilla warfare against tyranny."The ONLY reason to read this book is to discover what a complete idiot the author is. He describes himself as a desert rat. Perhaps he spent too much time in the desert sun without wearing a hat.

- Reading this book is, I feel, an unspoken duty of all peoplewith any interest in what allows them to live. Unlike some readers, Iinterpret Abbey's vision of the best lifestyle as a balance between roots (nature) and future (society). He is not a Luddite, nor is he an anarchist. This book offends many due to its strong views (name one person that made a difference about something they were ambivalent over). The key to understanding Desert Solitaire is; (yes here comes the platitude); keeping an open mind. There is no better way to phrase it.
