REVIEW OF EQUITY

VALUATION AND ANALYSIS W EVAL

- I tried really hard to like this book. The first couple of chapters were really promising, but then the author suddenly lost track of where she was going. Stilted broken part-way descriptive sentences. No serious romance going on. I really didn't care if they ended up together. I suggest Karen Marie Moning for really great time travel romance, or for the serious time travel enthusiast - Diana Gabaldon's Outlander. Both authors have never written a dud. This was definitely a dud, no offense intended to the author of course. It just didn't happen.

- Continues on where the first book left off pretty much exactly. Not quite as raunchy, as the discovery phase has been left behind. Some super powered benefactors, government agents, religious nuts, and more of trying to work out weird alien artifacts. Basically, they have found at what is going on, but need to work out what to do.
