REVIEW OF PRIORITIZATION DELEGATION AND ASSIGNMENT PDA BY LACHARITY

- Dune is a masterpiece in itself, not even looking at the sequels you still get introduced into a very rich and detailed world. The book starts a bit slow but by the end your thirsty for more, luckily there is. Hard to compare to anything else, for its in a league of its own.

- Why another review? Supposedly things are so complicated and sophisticated these days. People know what they like what they don't. Computers need file names and folders. So publishers need categories, writers need to stay in them. Parents get pleased when the child learns to color inside the lines, conformity is rewarded. But what of art? Some think Homer never existed. Some think he was blind. We all know he did not put pen to paper. Yet all lists of the greatest literature of all time show the Iliad and the Odyssey at the top. And supposedly they were only two of many that did not survive the fire in Alexandria. But the tales were just songs, people heard them, memorized them, some wrote them down, more learned them, the writings got lost, things changed, poems got translated, and so on and so on. Has this reviewr lost the thread? Dune is mythology, an epic tale. Mr. Herbert left the building, went some where else so he could show the myths of our civilization. Those that had grown since the time of Homer. Homer wrote of the myths that had preceeded him, perhaps by 500 years. Mr. Herbert writes of the myths that arose over the last 2500 years. To do this he went to Dune. As Archimedes demonstrated you must go to another place to find the leverage to move the world. Now we can wait and see over the next 2000 years if this epic tale as deep as any I know of, can have the legs Homer has shown already. But I must admit I was inspired by this book. Not bad for $7.99? Perhaps you will too. But it helps to live in a rain forest.
