REVIEW OF SILVERSTEIN SPECTROMETRIC IDENTIFICATION ORGANIC COMPOUNDS ANSWER KEY

• This was nothing but an attempt to cash in on an old series he abandoned twenty years ago. At least a third of the characters were left out (what is happening with Jimmy and Cynthia?) and it was just a short, contrived dissapointment. The rich story lines and character work that I have come to expect from Griffin were nowhere to be found. A waste of time and money.

• The main character here, Jonas, proved his talents and became the new receiver- in training. The giver and the receiver are kind of a cell, where you keep all the memories. The world, (described in this book), is nothing. No taste, no colors, no feelings, no emotions, no changes, but the same dull life of living with the rule. Through his trainings, he discovered many delights and pains, for that he never experienced it before. In addition, he was told why the world was so dull, full of mechanic voices meaning nothing. The committee had changed the world. The climate made the crops difficult to grow and the raw landscape made them almost impossible to live. So they used climate change, bulldozers to make everything easy and simple. After taking the nature into control, it was said that the committee took all emotions, pains, joys and selected a person to hold all those "dangerous" memories themselves- The Giver. Jonas, after a year, sets his mind of returning the emotions to the numb world, and carefully plans his move. When Jonas escapes, the Giver will let go of all his memories to let people FEEL the world. However, Jonas took a young child named Gabriel and the escape was delayed. While the escape, Jonas experienced the real, unchanged world, and he had memories himself. The REAL memories he experienced instead of transferred. At the end, Jonas finds his destination, and slides to what it may be a real world, or elsewhere. I think we should be thoughtful about our lives and enjoy it well. Who knows? Maybe our future will be the same as the people in the Giver.
