REVIEW OF JEE MAINS PAPER 2 ANSWER KEY CODE K ONLY

- All while I was reading this book I could hear the soundtrack of a 1937 black and white movie. This book has all the elements of a sappy, romantic one, which includes a patriotic view of the war. It has the stilted language of a B movie script. The author even gets Clark Gable, David Niven and Hedda Hopper to do cameo roles. If that isn't enough he gets Bugsy Siegel to make a menacing appearance. Mr. Woods warps history to make the story work, well almost. Even with all this it is still an enjoyable ride in a cream convertible, with the top down.

- Set in the 1940s, "The Prince of Beverly Hills" follows a semi-disgraced policeman by the name of Rick Barron who, while sitting in his patrol car one night in Beverly Hills and contemplating his recent demotion, witnesses an accident that will change his life quite dramatically for the better. One of the accident victims is a Hollywood leading man, and based on the way that Barron handles the events of the evening, he soon finds himself in the employ of the actor's studio. The book chronicle's Barron progression from head of studio security to head of production over the course of about 3 years, right at the outbreak of World War II. Along the way, he's forced to deal with a number of organized crime figures, including the infamous Ben "Bugsy" Seigel of Las Vegas lore. The book features fictional characters, but also a large number of appearances by non-fictional characters. In addition to Seigel, Clark Gable, David Niven, Greta Garbo, and several other celebrities from that era have brief roles in the plot. It's a fun read...nothing remotely cerebral here...and harkens back to a simpler time when Big Band music ruled the airwaves and Churchill occupied the Prime Minister's office. It's the type of book you could get through in a weekend quite easily. There's just enough mystery to keep it interesting, and the good guys really do finish first in this one. Light and entertaining, it's a nice addition to the collection of 30+ novels authored by Stuart Woods.
