REVIEW OF BMW E46 318I MANUAL

- Castles written by Julie Garwood is my second favorite. I have read it three times and I have found things I missed the first time around. I highly recommend his book.
- This is one of the most concise and practical blackjack books on the market. The new blackjack player will have to spend some time (2-3 months) training, but once the Preferred and Betting strategies are ingrained, the results are spectacular. Here is my "study" of real-time KO play in Vegas. I played a 6-deck shoe with insurance, late surrender, using a scaled betting strategy of 6 units per 1% advantage (ramp of 6), and going out to a maximum of 20 betting units. In addition I used the "bad shoe" exit strategy (sit out bad shoes). KO played in this manner had a positive expectancy $> 0.73\%$. In the real world, I have won 6 consecutive outings using strictly the KO system. In addition the avg. profit is about 3-4 times the base bet per hour (using the above criteria) in my experience. Each of my outing for KO was played with a minimum of 200 betting units and 20 hours minimum playing time. Each KO outing consisted of at least 1600 hands. Win accuracy $> 70\%$ in # of rounds played (3-hr session = 1 "round"). I never had a drawdown in equity of > 40 betting units at any one point in time (with my initial 200 betting units). My max bet was 14 betting units in one hand, and most never exceeded 10 betting units. Finally, minimal pit boss heat since most plays are consistent with basic strategy. You must play aggressively and follow the precise play & betting strategies correctly! But KO is very easy to learn and master. One can get significantly better results using the same betting scale on more accurate systems like APC or AO-II (avg. of 10-20 times base bet per hour in expected profits due to the much higher playing accuracy and expectancies), but it does take much more effort to track the True Count and multiple level-counts. For recreational CONSISTENT & PROFITABLE playing, KO is tough to beat. If you want to be in the top 0.5% of all players, then learn AO-II, Uston APC, or Revere APC systems. Good luck and train hard! Most of all, have fun knowing you are playing well - regardless of winning or losing! Just enjoy the moment of the game!
