REVIEW OF HEMIJA ZBIRKA ZADATAKA UD BENICI UDZBENIK RS

- Alfred Kazin was by any reasonable measure one of America's greatest critics and men of letters, a reader who read first of all as a human being full of questions, passions, and--alas, overworked noun--heart. This is the astounding apprenticeship piece by the 27 year old Kazin. Does it have weaknesses? Surely. Young Kazin was blazing trails, as well as sharpening his tools, making way for future works of the journeyman. But it also sets a standard that those of us, like myself, who are nearly twice the age of the then young author, could scarcely live up to. Judged from a mature perspective, four stars. Judged as a work of youth, more than five. Young critics scholars, read and weep--and, of course, learn.

- When I first heard that the Worm Queen in Kalamazoo (Mary Appelhof) had published a kids' book on vermicomposting, my reaction was cautious. Last year someone sent me one that was just too cute--and inaccurately showed red wigglers with eyes! Hurrah for Compost, By Gosh!--it's just right! It combines charm with accuracy and clear, brief instructions for a parent who wants to say, "Yes!" to the child who begs, "Mom, can we have worms composting in our house?"Can't wait to read it at Earth Day 2003 celebration to children who live in my six-building apartment complex in New York City. -Naomi Dagen Bloom, Composting in Manhattan
