REVIEW OF CHAPTER 13 LAB FROM DNA TO PROTEIN SYNTHESIS ANSWERS

- This is a story of a young man who has committed a pointless murder. Monsieur Meursault tells his own story of a young man living a comfortable life in Algiers. He drifts through life, working everyday at his office job and enjoying the pleasures of life: smoking, eating at restaurants, dating his girlfriend Marie, swimming at the beach, and people watching. He is an easygoing, untroubled fellow who lives in the now and is not concerned about the past or future. His mother dies in a home for aged persons and he travels to attend her funeral. He feels no grief but just observes the proceedings of the funeral and then journeys home for a weekend of swimming and going to movies with his girlfriend, Marie. Marie wants to get married and he agrees; but when she asks him if he loves her, he says no, but he will marry her if she wants to get married. He doesn't seem to have any deep feelings or emotions. He has no ambition or direction. He is a sensual, feeling person who likes to observe others. He is kind to people like the neighbor who has just lost his dog. He inadvertently becomes involved in a scheme of a pimp named Raymond whom he has befriended to punish the pimp's girlfriend. This leads to Monsieur Meursault senselessly killing the girlfriend's brother. He is imprisoned and tried for the crime. Oddly enough, he is prosecuted more for his amoral character than the crime he has committed. While lying in his cell, waiting for either his execution or appeal, he continues to think only of himself, not worrying about dying, just watching, feeling and observing the things around him. Mersault is an honest, but shallow and ordinary man who is also an atheist. He believes only in what he can see. I liked this book although it was sad and bleak. The plot is very simple and the writing style is very smooth and expressive and interesting enough to keep you reading until the end. It was interesting to read about what can go wrong when a person just drifts along with life.

- Compared to the

"other" essential existential text: Nausea, this one is the heads up winner. I have been a study of existentialism for four years and I have read each work twice and presented a paper over the poor quality of Sartre's attempt at the existential novel (not to say his other works are not worth the time, quite the contrary, "No Exit," in my opinion, is one of the great works ever put on the stage). Rather Camus' work encompasses the whole of existential theory without dragging the reader down into his political ideologies along the way. This is a true masterpiece of literature.
