REVIEW OF IB MATH SL 1 TRIG PRACTICE PROBLEMS MARKSCHEME ALEI

- Saliently Ms. Karon summarizes the series and this final installment in the Mitford series: the Father gathers the family; then moves on. Weaving with her demonstrated skill at keeping multiple storylines going and keeping the reader's interest perked (or not all it seems from some of the reviewers with this finale) she marvelously weaves her magic through tales of ordinary folks on a mountain wrapped with Mitford folks we've come to know and love over the series. From runaway kids of dysfunctional homes to lead poisoning to hidden money to a chicken thief. Notably, however, this offering has more Scripture, more witness to the faith than the others. Thus, easily this reviewer's esteem and enjoyment following the reopened spiritual outpost. The interspersing of hymns and prayers and emails show that faith of old still functioning even in age of technology. What marvelous seaming together of the wonder of it all! Especially touching is ASL signing with

Clarence and small congregation's learning to communicate with this neglected language group. What begins in the spring seems so encouraging to a book introduced as chill of fall turns to winter approaches, renewing one's longing for it. Ending as it does with a June scene and paths yet untrod ahead for our Father Timothy and Cynthia, seems the perfect jumpoff for what is to come from our beloved wordsmith Karon. Can't wait for Fr.T series, but now relishing this wonderful finale read!

- This is a great book in large print for all to read. A fantastic series that each time you read it, you will pick up something new. Jan Karon did it again - WOW
