REVIEW OF BUSINESS AND PERSONAL FINANCE 2012

- Of Mice and MenBy: John SteinbeckReview by: Hunter T, student at MLMSI may not have been living in the Great Depression, but novelist John Steinbeck made me feel like I had been there from the beginning to the end. George and Lennie (the main characters) was the oddest bunch of friends. George a thin, stalker man took care of Lennie. Lennie a giant, strong man was mentally retarded and didn't even know his own strength. When we find our characters, Lennie and George, they are sitting on the banks of the Salinas River. There are trees, willows fresh and green, and limbs arching over the river. Leaves scattered underneath the trees. A couple of rabbits come out of the brush to sit on the sand. It was a cool autumn day in 1930. The Great Depression knocked George and Lennie off track. They must travel now from town to town. Finding new jobs, because Lennie keeps getting in trouble. The main idea the author is trying to convey is love. Even though these two friends are the oddest couple, they are the best friends ever. George gets mad at Lennie all the time, we know George needs Lennie and Lennie needs George. The ending was sad but we know that it was out of love. My all time favorite quote from Lennie would be, "I didn't mean no harm George, honest." Lennie is always getting in trouble, so just hearing him say that makes the story all the better. I will never forget, "Rabbits, George, Rabbits." Lennie was my all time favorite character, for his loveable and gentle ways. My recommendation would be, to only read this book if you are a mature eighth grader and above. This book is strong with profanity, so if you are okay with that go ahead and read the book. I guarantee you will love George and Lennie; if you don't then don't read another John Steinbeck book again. I recommend listening to it on tape and hearing Gary Sinise's voices. You will laugh at them all. PLEASE READ THE

- That was a tipic life in the 1930's, where the depretion was combinated with the racism. There, in a simple ranch, some day two migrants workers friends, decided to start a new life. George, the older but the smaller, was a person whu take care of his friend, and always save him of the troubles. Lennie, with a giant body, but with mind of a baby, always finish doing something that he don't except, that block their dreams and relationship. Great feelings are showing in the book... lonely, desires and hopes follow a tremendes adventure to get their own land. But the inocent force of Lennie, will change some decitions and plans on the ranch of the suspence...
