REVIEW OF TEKNIK INSTALASI TENAGA LISTRIK EDUCATION II

- I first heard Paxton Quigley's name mentioned by Tom Brokaw on NBC Nightly News, then I saw her on 60 Minutes and on Oprah. Media don't impress me but this lady does. I really liked her first two books and bought them to give to female friends and relatives. This one, Stayin' Alive, is her best yet. 100 years ago it may have been the men's job to keep their 'womenfolk' safe but certainly no longer today. Today a woman has to prepare herself to encounter violent predators - mentally, physically and with hardware - because she will. It's not 'paranoia' if they are really after you - and they are. If you read only one book on the subject it should be this one.

- While I do admit that these stories are no longer capable of scaring me, I also understand the fact that...this is a children's book. That being said, if you are not 12 and under, you might find some of the stories rather bland--especially if you're a serious horror fan. Anyway, this book is great for campfire/sleepover/Halloween party-type settings. They're pretty short, but still quite enjoyable. My father read these books to my siblings and I as children during the month of October, and they scared the crap out of us. The illustrations....weird, scary, freaky stuff. Bottom line. In my opinion, the pictures are even scarier than the actual stories. I'm 26 now, and some of them still creep me out to this very day. So, if you're intending to read these stories aloud, then make sure that you show the pictures to add to the scare factor. Overall, I still enjoy this collection of stories. I highly suggest giving them a shot.
