REVIEW OF THE STORMRIDER SURF GUIDE LES ICICLES CANARIES VERSION FRANCCEDILAIS STORMRIDER SURF GUIDES

- In the world where fear is not a factor, crime is not an option, and happiness is required, Jonas, a twelve year old, changes this world drastically. The community Jonas lives in is one hundred percent controlled but the government and as people reach a certain age, they are given a privilege to receive something from the government. When Jonas is assigned a job as a receiver on his twelfth birthday, people in his community only see him as a caring, smart, never to do anything wrong young adult. As Jonas is opened up to a world only a few get to see in his society, he is astonished and appalled by the troubling activities that take place to make his world, a "safe" place. The Giver, person who gives Jonas the memories, changes Jonas and changes his way of life by opening Jonas up to pain, fear, and doubt. As Jonas tries to live his life, he realizes that his family as well as his community is controlled as if they were robots. The government has made strict rules and if some "forbidden" rules are broken, "the government" makes the person who broke the rule just disappear. This is what drives people to do as they are told. Jonas gets to a breaking point and he decides that people need to know about what is going on in his community. His first step was giving his received memories to a baby that was temporarily living at his house. The baby did not meet the "requirements" due to crying all the time, and was scheduled to be put to death. Fearing that the government would find out and knowing what happened to the previous receiver, he takes an unpredictable step. This book is truly an amazing piece of writing and it should be a requirement for schools throughout the country.

- The Giver is a great book. It's not too hard material but it's a little complicated. I would suggest that kids 9-14 should read it. It's a good book for any project since it's very unique.
