REVIEW OF ANSWERS FOR RETEACHING ACTIVITY 20

- This book contains a lot of useful dating information. It's not just for straight couples, either. If you pay close attention to the dynamics she describes, you can almost certainly find where you fall in that range. I would caution, though, that in my opinion, some of her suggestions are a recipe for disaster. It borders on the line of manipulation and control, some of which goes too far. None-the-less, there are lessons we all learn in relationships. About giving away our power, being "too nice" and playing the role of "enabler" for bad behavior. Learn from your mistakes, and be wiser... that's the key! It's a good read, just take it all with a grain of salt.

- This book makes the common mistake of lumping all men into one giant category. As fun as that might be for teenagers and kids, the reality of adult men is that they do not all think and act the same. Ladies, if you follow the advice in this book, you need to know something. Men usually try to date someone who is similar to their mother. Whatever role model they got from their mother, is the pattern they are looking for in their girlfriend or wife. So, if their mother was a bitch and cold and aloof, that is the type of woman they will go after. So, ask yourself: Do I want to "catch" a man who grew up with a bitchy, unloving mother? Then I should be a bitchy, aloof woman. On the other hand, do I want to "catch" a man who had a positive, loving, and honest relationship with his mother? Then I should just be my genuine, loving, and caring self. Here is another newsflash for women: as shocking as it may seem, men are "human beings" who have something known as "feelings" and who respond to love and hatred the same way you do. Ever hear the phrase, "to have a friend, be a friend?" Well, romantic love is the same way, with the only difference being the whole "mother-pattern" thing that I mentioned above. Also, humor and comedy are WAY more effective than bitchiness to grow some love between two people. I consider laughter to be the glue that makes people stick together. And as everybody knows, the best kind of humor is to poke a little fun at yourself. The strongest relationships are where the man and woman both have shared "inside jokes" to cut through the dull thudding of daily life. Like if you both watched a funny movie and were laughing through the whole movie, you can use the funny lines in that movie to help smooth out the rough spots in your relationship. Men don't love bitches... they love women who can laugh at themselves and at life in general... there is nothing like shared laughter to grow some lifetime love.
