REVIEW OF DOWNLOAD THE ARCHITECTURE REFERENCE AND SPECIFICATION

- Diamond's book does a fairly good job at evaluating the conditions of societal collapse, but his theory lacks the modern analysis of imperialism, which is an enormous factor in collapse today as resources are brought out of the third world into the first for consumer purchase. Diamond's personal interjections break the flow of the book, and often are quite offensive, "The U.S. explicitly forbids the importation of kangaroo meat, because we find the beasts cute, and because a congressman's wife heard that kangaroos are endangered." Diamond's personal commentary has no factual basis to support it, and is quite offensive. Collapse approaches potential solutions but instead favors a small, insignificant substitutions for "unsustainable factors in society."

- I thought Jared's previous book, "Guns, Germs, and Steel", was outstanding. This book is terrible. His premise that civilizations collapse because they damage the environment is unsubstantiated, and he offers no scientifically valid data to support it. Not worth reading.
