The most important disciple a parent will make is within their own home, and yet this is the most difficult disciple to make. Family Discipleship by Matt Chandler and Adam Griffin helps readers develop a sustainable rhythm of gospel-centered discipleship through a guided framework focusing on moments of discipleship in 3 key areas: time (intentional time gathering your family around gospel activities or conversations), moments (leveraging opportunities throughout the day), and milestones (celebrating significant life events). Each section provides parents with Scriptures to consider, questions to answer, structures to implement, and ideas to try out as they seek to see Christ formed in their children. REVIEW OF CHILDRENS SERMONS FOR ADVENT

- This novel creates a great feeling of depression, which for one put me off trying to actually finish the book. The way in which Atwood jumps from different timelines my seem a good way of showing the reader how society turned to adapt to the circumstances of woman becoming less fertile. But It just goes on and on, and the exaggerated descriptive style, is very monotonous, distracting you from the plot. A very imaginative view of the future though, and yes it's certainly for woman. There's a lot better, like -Three billy goats gruff.

- I enjoyed this book a lot. The idea that there are other inhabited planets out there, with peoples more advanced than us; its fascinating. I bought the book because it was mentioned in a recommendation book called 'Geat Books for Girl's',but had a hard time getting hold of a copy. It was worth the trouble, though. Definitely wish the publisher would have it reprinted. 'Far Side of Evil', another book by this author, is also great. But beware:'Planet Girded Suns' and 'Tools for Tomorrow' are dry, dry facts, not sci-fi!
