REVIEW OF LEESVAARDIGHEID FRANS ONDERBOUW TALENWIJZER

- The play, The Sea Gull, by Anton Chekhov, though short, contains all of the dramatic aspects of a long novel. The fact that many substantial events occur within the short length of this play make The Sea Gull a play that is constantly moving along, and therefore reads very quickly. Because The Sea Gull is so full of dramatic events, however, it is also somewhat confusing when dealing with passing time, and keeping track of when certain events happen. In this play, Treplev is in love with a young woman named Nina who falls in love with a writer, Trigorin, whom his mother, Arkadina, seems to pay more attention to than her own son, making Treplev lose the love of two women in his life to the same man. After Nina leaves Treplev, he gets extremely depressed and when she returns after much time only to leave once more, Treplev commits suicide, ending the play. The events of this play are very sad for Treplev and somewhat depressing to read about. However, because this play does not contain long, dragged-out explanations and descriptions of events and people, making it extremely easy to read, on top of being very well written, I would recommend this play to anyone looking for a fast moving, interesting story.

- I have loved ALL of the Alien books and her mystery novels. Pairing a detective with an alien gives new twists to the mystery genre. Please finish this series. The wife, the lover, the partner???How will this end?
