REVIEW OF PEARSON EDUCATION LIMITED END OF YEAR ANSWERS

- Isaac Asimov is one of the best known Science-Fiction Writers, and for good reason. He wrote this award-winning book at the age of 21. Foundation is one of the best books I have read to this date. Science Fiction is a broad area and can only be defined by these two words, hence the name. Asimov utilizes very realistic facts in a novel placed 15,000+ years in the future. In the year 1951 when the novel was written was just 5 years after the first computer showed its face. Yet Asimov utilizes the common computer and calculator in many scenes in this novel. The use of nuclear power for showing superiority is also used often. This book was way ahead of its time. Anyone who enjoys science fiction or even one who just enjoys being entertained by realistic facts put into a story will enjoy this book. Foundation is also very suspenseful. Such as life-changing decisions to be made, assassination attempts, spaceflight, and the exploration of new worlds in detail, the reader feels like he is in the mix of the action.

- Political space tales aren't really my thing, but I must say that, politics aside, I was astonished that Asimov was so young when he wrote this. Few writers can write such good prose before middle-age. The story itself is rather mundane for a true sci-fi enthusiast. You'll not find any great discoveries by astronaut explorers or the like, but what it does do, it does well. His treatment of religion is silly though, and like most atheist writers, it's not very well thought out. I've not read anything else by him, but one hopes his later novels were better developed in that area. The mystical hints that run through nearly all of Arthur C Clarke's stories are the most intriguing thing about them. Asimov would have done well to have studied them.
