- Patricia Cornwell gives us yet another heroine tale of Dr. Kay Scarpetta. This book did not go into the actual crimes or the criminal but more of the personal life of the "good doctor" and her sidekicks Marino and Lucy. I look forward to every book of hers to hit the stands. However, this time I was a little disappointed. I have been disappointed by the last couple of books. The characters are not as strong and the same story keeps repeating. I can almost predict what is going to happen. This book seemed to contain a lot of detail, meaning research was done. I have to admit that Cornwell does excellent research. Cornwell writes so that I have to read the book. I can't sleep until I am done. I usually read an entire book of hers in a couple of hours. Not a lot of authors can do that. Reminder to all of those out there who have not read previous books by her... start at the beginning of the series (with Postmordem) and continue down the line. It makes the stories more interesting and easier to follow.

- This book reminds me of Cornwell's earlier works in this series which I liked very much. Her last 3 books however have left a bad taste in my mouth. I was delighted to see the end of the "Carrie Gretham" influence and had much hope for this new book. It was a good book, but I think Patricia Cornwell is sick of the series and wants to move on. Why do writer's get so angry at the characters who made them famous? It's almost as if they are jealous. Obviously it's time to say goodbye to Kay Scarpetta.
