REVIEW OF INSIDE THE TORNADO BY GEOFFREY A MOORE

- The Giver by Lois Lowry is well written. Each chapter makes to reader want to see what is going to unfold next. The words the author uses will help build young peoples' vocabulary. The way Jonas makes sure that every word he uses to express his feelings or emotions have to be an accurate description. The story line will appeal to any twelve year old because of the anxiety they are feeling at that age. The characters are believable. The Jonas's world is a serious place to live everyone must conform to the rules. The story is built around the responsibilities of turning twelve. The Giver teaches Jonas his responsibilities are the community's new Receiver and it opens his eyes to a whole new way of life. I only have one caution for parents. Parents should read this book first because it has a shocking way of dealing with people when they are no longer useful or cannot conform to the community's way of life. I recommend the book for mature pre-teens to young adults.

- This book, as disturbing as it was, was an excellent sci-fi book that, though odd, makes us all see that there is not, on the Earth we know, a place where everything is perfect.....as we can not know true happiness or pleasure without first experiencing pain and suffering. Jonas makes me (I am also 12) think more, though this is a reach, more about the freedom of choice, for in the Community, there is none. The book struck as a powerful reminder that there is not a better world than that the one we live in, for there would be no happiness if it were the same as the Community, and no feelings. Without feelings, we are not human, and the people in this book scared me that some day there really may be a place that comes around here or in some other life where there are no feelings, color, or, most importantly, love. :
