REVIEW OF SOCIAL WORK EXAM SERVICES COMPREHENSIVE STUDY GUIDE

- I have just finished reading Of Mice and Men for my 10th grade Honors English class. Set during the Depression, Of Mice and Men spans four days and follows the lives of George and Lennie. Lennie is mentally retarded, acts like a child, and is innocent. At the same time, he doesn't know his own strength. He likes to pet mice, but ends up killing them by accident. George travels with Lennie, has always looked out for him, and protects him whenever he gets into trouble. They both share a dream that many people held during the Depression: owning their own farm, and knowing what tomorrow will hold. What is so depressing is the way that the weak are treated in this story. Every man is for himself, and no one cares about anyone else, especially the weak. For instance, Candy's dog was shot because it was old and it stank, even though it was very special to Candy. After the only thing he had was shot, Candy began to think this might happen to him when he gets too old to work, so he took up George and Lennie's dream of owning a farm. This book is very sad because dreams are presented as foolish fantasies that will never happen. George, Lennie, and Candy never do get to have the farm and the rabbits they wanted. Curley's wife, evil and selfish as she is, tempted Lennie into doing yet another bad thing. This led to Lennie having to escape and being chased down in the end. Lennie thought George was his friend and trusted him so much, but George kills him at the end of the novel and walks off with Slim. Lennie is so nice. He shouldn't have been killed. In this novel, the weak are seen as a nuisance to society who must be exterminated. Of Mice and Men hints that the only way to survive is to be mean and ruthless. The weak should not be looked upon this way. We should try to help them, not get rid of them. Everyone already has enough troubles in his or her life. Why read such a depressing book?

- The story is about two guys who go to a ranch to find jobs. George is a small guy who is smart. Lennie is a big guy who is very slow. Lennie gets in lots of trouble with wanting to pet soft things like mice and velvet. When they get the job Lennie gets in lots of trouble with other workers at the ranch. There is a girl on the ranch, which gets Lennie in lots of trouble at the end of the story. I think it is a good book to read.
