REVIEW OF PRAYING FOR SLEEP

- I agree with Mr. Brokaw on many points and he is correct in saying that this generation brought about change This generation passed innovative legislation. I don't agree that it's the greatest generation perhaps compared to recent generations; lest we forget the generation that fought the war of Independence or the Civil War. If we forget history we are doomed.

- I looked forward with great anticipation to read this book. What I read instead was very disappointing, particularly from an author who has been a "talking head" in living rooms on NBC News for so many years. Indeed, the generation of which Brokaw wrote is great; "the greatest" perhaps. But I expected from the title a lot more than a loosely assembled annotation of a handful of people's lives. Some of those chosen were interesting, others were fascinating, but WHY did Brokaw select the ones he did and not others??? Two issues annoyed me to no end, however. First, was the repetitious nature of the point Brokaw tried to make. After a few "biographies" it was easy to figure out that these people sacrificed and succeeded! I didn't need two dozen more to get the message! Second, military awards are NOT "won"!!! It is NOT a contest with the Medal of Honor, for example, being "the prize" for first place! I have a couple of Silver Stars and as many Purple Hearts which were AWARDED for actions. Believe me, I never would have entered "the race" if those were "the prizes" for "winning". Please report the facts correctly Mr. Brokaw, using the correct vocabulary!
