REVIEW OF SCHEMA MONTAGGIO ALBERO MOTORE FIAT 500 EPOCA

• This book describes suffering fleshed out. This book tears apart the meaning of humanity, and leaves the meaning of the world to rest on individual shoulders of toiling men and women. This book slaps you in the face and ignores social behaviors that say, "privacy, please!" This book is, very possibly, THE BEST. Only in darkness does mankind duel with their bare toughness. Only in darkness does mankind face reality - one that says, "who is with you? Look into heaven! Who do you see there?" The soul squirms. "Tell me the truth!!!" screeches nothingness, and suddenly man looks into the blank twinkling of the heavens, and sees NOTHING. Light depends on love. The love of God allowed man to be able to come back to "live with him" happily for all eternity. We are to sacrifice ourselves to him; no questions asked. He loves us - why should we not love him? The weight of pleasant, painless joy depends on existence of something compassionate in heaven. But, strip it all away. Feel the blows of the cautious parental hand, the constraints of truth, the pressures of life. Feel the pains in happiness, the perverseness in striving for perfection. Look at the dark side to find a truth that will kill you, for in blackness there is no such thing as heaven or hell. The blackness will not lie. This is what East of Eden is all about: satisfaction. Interesting pieces from the book: "You are one of the rare people who can separate your observation from your preconception. You see what is, where most people see what they expect." "There are no ugly questions except those clothed in condescension." "The ways of sins are curious. I guess if a man had to shuck off everything he had, inside and out, he'd manage to hide a few little sins somewhere for his own discomfort. They're the last things we'll give up." "Humility must be a good thing, since it's a rare man who has not a piece of it, but when you look at humbleness it's hard to see where its value rests until you grant that it is a pleasurable pain and very precious." "Suffering - I wonder has it been properly looked at." "Sometimes a silence tells the most." "It's easy to say she was bad, but there is little reason unless you know why." "Chuckling - the sound he made when any force in the world defeated him. He had an idea that even when beaten he could steal a little victory by laughing at defeat." "Act out being alive, like in a play. And after a while, a long while, it will be true." "You're going to pass something down no matter what you do or of you do nothing. Even if you let yourself go fallow, the weeds will grow and the brambles. Something will grow." "It is easy out of laziness, out of weakness, to throw oneself into the lap of deity and saying, "I couldn't help it; the way was set." But think of the glory of the choice! That makes a man a man. A cat has no choice, a bee must make honey. There's no godliness there." "I believe there are techniques of the human mind whereby, in its dark deep, problems are examined, rejected or accepted. Such activities sometimes concern facets a man does not know he has. How often one goes to sleep troubled and full of pain, not knowing what causes the travail, and in the morning a whole new direction and a clearness is there, maybe the result of the black reasoning. And again there are mornings when ecstasy bubbles in the blood, and the stomach and chest are tight and electric with joy, and nothing in the thoughts to justify it or cause it." "There is more beauty in the truth even if it is a dreadful beauty." And more...she who is no longer the Angel of Music (sorry this is so long)

• If John Q-Nobody were to submit this manuscript to a publisher today, I doubt that it would make it out of the slush pile. The best parts of the book were Steinbeck's descriptions of flowers, rocks, hills and trees, which isn't saying much for the story.
