REVIEW OF OXFORD GCSE MATHS FOR AQA HIGHER PLUS TEACHERS

- Culbertson's book is a military club best seller because it shines the light of truth on much of the exaggerations and outright lies that have come out of the Vietnam War. When Culbertson speaks of himself in combat action with the rest of his fifth marine buddies he is using a writing technique called a "flashback". Many combat veterans see past events like a movie where they view themselves merely as a participant. The reason many of the stories in the book seem disjointed is because each sniper team operated with different units in different places during the same time period. This is the most technically accurate portrayal of the Fifth Marines in Vietnam that exists. This book also contains the names of operations, list of snipers, and battles that were led by specific officers. Check out the USMC history annals on these events and you too may learn the truth about Vietnam.

- Thrown off at first by the context of I Was A Teenage Fairy, I began to believe that this book was for someone younger than me. After giving it a second chance I became intrigued with the majestic imagination of the book and the characters, Barbie and Mab. Block connected the real life events of a spoiled, wealthy, selfish mother and a beautiful lost little girl with a secret friend she has always dreamed of meeting. Mab symbolizes Barbie's emotions, fears, curiosities, and love. And within this reading there are many examples of the common struggles of an average teenager. I have now realized that this book is not only enjoyable for all teenagers, many others younger and older can benefit from it just as much.
