REVIEW OF BRUNNER AND SUDDARTH TEXTBOOK OF MEDICAL SURGICAL NURSING 10TH EDITION

- Fahrenheit 451-Review Fahrenheit 451 is a science fiction book set in the future about a fireman named Guy Montag. Only Guy doesn't put out fires like firemen today, he starts them instead. The point of these fires is to burn books, because his society has decided that books do more harm than good. After seeing the look on people's faces after their books were burned Guy becomes interested in books and wonders why people seem to care so much about them. He starts to read books and eventually gives up his old lifestyle. Overall, I thought that Fahrenheit-451 was an interesting and exciting book. It was a little slow and hard to understand at first but eventually it started to pick up and became hard to put down. I can't say much for the setting or the character development but the book was worth reading just for its phenomenal theme. Near the end the suspense started to pour in and it does keep you on the edge of your seat but immediately after that it slows down. I myself did think that this was an all right book. If you like science fiction and enjoy creative and important themes then Fahrenheit 451 is an excellent choice. I would recommend this book, though I don't like science fiction that much, only because of what it teaches us about the importance of books.

- there were parts of this book I enjoyed, but overall it is not a classic piece of literature. He's way too heavy-handed in his treatment of the material. The writing is just average. A good example is when he returns to the firehouse the night his wife turns him in. They get a call and it turns out to be his own house. It was obvious from the beginning that they would be ending up at his house (I thought), but to describe it Bradbury writes: "Why," said Montag slowly, "we've stopped in front of my house". I can think of a hundred other ways to convey that information that would have been more subtle, more elegant, more surprising. Be he hit's us over the head. It's like bad TV. Cut to commercial...
