REVIEW OF JUNIOR ASSISTANT QUESTION PAPER

- Very nice book to give as a gift. Arrived very quickly and in perfect condition.
- I picked up this book at the library because I regard Jayne Ann Krentz as the best writer of romantic suspense on the market today. If you've read many of her books as I have you'll agree that her writing has matured since her Stephanie James period. There are a few elements in this story that found their way into later novels: the hero with a large dog (Smoke in Mirrors), the hero's obsession with good coffee (Eye of the Beholder), and the hero who fails to tell the heroine who he really is at the beginning of their relationship (Grand Passion; Deep Waters; Obsidian Prey). However, those elements can't save this story, which is too surreal to be believed. Julian becomes obsessed with a stranger in town (Emelina), then stalks her, virtually kidnaps her and comes close to raping her. Oh, yeah, it's supposed to be seduction, except that his sex dialog sounds too much like a horny teenager instead of a 40-year old executive. Feminists would probably consider this novel a "bodice ripper," since the plot is so much like that genre. This novel depicts an almost D/s kind of relationship, except without the collar and chains. That Krentz would write a story in which a total stranger highjacks a woman and takes over her life without one word of explanation of who he is seems incredible. And, of course, the heroine is too subject to her own confused emotions and passions to tell Julian to go screw himself. Maybe Emelina was simply a victim of the Stockholm Syndrome and five years into the marriage she's going to wonder what she has done to herself. In my view their beginning does not bode well for a long-lasting happy marriage.
