REVIEW OF AUTHENTIC ASSESSMENT IN ACTION STUDIES OF SCHOOLS AND STUDENTS

AT WORK PAPERBACK

- I like most of the writings of Roger Zelazny that I have read. He is a student of the Qabalah and the Grail and embeds real knowledge of some esoteric spiritual practices in his entertaining stories. This one started out as a short story and expanded into a full book. The style is very condensed. It seems that not a word is wasted. Some paragraphs say a lot. The story is about a therapist who uses a machine to enter into the dreams of others and even make dreams for them. A physically blind woman wants to know what seeing is like. The therapist memorizes his day time experiences and shares them in the sessions, visits museums and has her join him in the dream of what he did during the day. The theme of our ordinary world being a dream is touched upon indirectly through this medium, with the therapist almost becoming a god for the blind woman as she gradually learns how to see and to visualize in this shared space. There are multiple themes playing out through the pages with Qabalistic themes used in the background, for instance a master of the tree of life does not merely ascend the middle pillar, but must be able to go up and down the tree of life.

- In 1935, Lippincott released an omnibus edition "Three Volumes in One" collecting Guys and Dolls, Money From Home, and Blue Plate Special. A sizable book: 505 pp with Harry Beckhoff art on the dustjacket. This edition proved popular and was issued as a reprint at some point by Sun Dial Press and Garden City.
