REVIEW OF COMPETITIVE JUDO THROWING TECHNIQUES AND WEIGHT CONTROL FABER PAPERBACKS

- I think that the giver deserves five stars because i enjoyed this novel jonas is given the job of the receiver. and he is receiving memories from the giver. i dont know how it ends because i havent finished it yet.

- The GiverBy: Lois LowryReviewed by: J. HoP.1The Giver is about a boy named Jonas. Jonas lived in a perfect small town governed by many rules. He gets excited about his ceremony of twelve years old because he gets assigned to his adult job. His job was to become the receiver of memories, or all the experience of the world. During his training, he experienced real world feelings that he was unable to experience in his perfect little town. After seeing what a "release" is and hearing that a newborn was going to be released, he couldn't stand living in the village anymore. He planned his and the newborn's escape from the village with the memory giver. In the end, Jonas and the baby were able to escape the village. There were some things I liked and disliked about the story.The part where there was the war scene was a part I didn't like. "Dirt streaked the boy's face and his matted blond hair. He lay sprawled, his uniform glistening with wet, fresh blood." The war scene was really sad. A kid had to go to war and even got badly injured. "The colors of the carnage were grotesquely bright: the crimson wetness on the rough and dusty fabric, the ripped shreds of grass, startlingly green, in the boys yellow hair." The scene was described in a sort of gory way because I pictured a place with lots of blood everywhere on the ground. There was another part in the story I disliked.The part where the newborn was released was another part I detested. "To his surprise, his father began very carefully to direct the needle into the top of newchild's forehead, puncturing the place where the fragile skin pulsed. The newborn squirmed and wailed faintly." I felt sad for the baby. I knew that taking a shot at that area meant that there something bad was going to happen to the baby. "As he continued to watch, the newchild, no longer crying, moved his arms and legs in a jerking motion. Then he went limp. His head fell to the side, his eyes half open. Then he was still." This quote from the story confirmed my guess about something bad happening to the baby. The baby was killed. There was also a part of the story that I liked. I liked the part where Jonas escapes with Gabe, a newborn. "'So,' Father went on, 'we obviously had to make the decision. Even I voted for Gabriel's release when we had the meeting this afternoon.'... But it was necessary because it had the child seat attached to the back. And he had taken Gabriel too." Jonas was very brave to risk his life to save someone else even though he is a kid himself. "He wept because he was afraid now that he could not save Gabriel. He no longer cared about himself." Jonas acted very kind. He put the well-being of the baby in front of himself.
