REVIEW OF A HANDBOOK OF PUBLIC SPEAKING FOR SCIENTISTS AND ENGINEERS

- Robert Crais has created a very interesting series with the tough and quiet Joe Pike and the outrageous and outspoken Elvis Cole. The Series has come to a crossroads with this novel and Crais has masterfully maneuvered himself into a terrific situation. The always cracking wise and smart mouth of Elvis Cole is gagged for this book and the serious side of Cole and the caring side of Pike are moved to the forefront. When Ben, Lucy's son is kidnapped and Richard (Lucy's ex) comes into town to put the blame directly on Lucy and Cole, the thrills begin and the story unfolds quickly. But woven into the story are flashbacks into Cole's life that we have never been allowed to see previously. The writing is crisp and the story taunt. We again get to see Carol Starkey (Demolition Angel) and she adds another interesting character to the series. There is even a cameo appearance of another of my favorite detectives of Michael Connelly fame. This story has it all and is not easy to put down.

- An interesting mix of family antedotes and winemaking information. Alligator Dreams is a must-read for all wine lovers. The Winemaking Timetable and Vineyard Timeline are outstanding. Kate May's photos combined with Richard Paul Hinkle's prose create a lasting impression of Anderson Valley, Mendocino Ridge and Greenwood Ridge Vineyards.
