REVIEW OF CHEMISTRY PACKET ANSWERS 9 2 PRACTICE PROBLEMS

- In this book, I believe Amelia does a much better job of writing than when she wrote In the Forests of the Night. She puts more character into the figures in the book and that really makes it flow. However, like all books, there are a few flaws. Jessica is the school outcast. People instinctively avoid her and she does not get along with her foster mom, Anne. She spends a lot of her free time in her room writing under the pen name, Ash Night. Then, Alex a.k.a. Aubrey-very powerful vampire, shows up at her school. She's attracted to him and thinks he looks just like the character, Aubrey from her book. Little does she know that Alex and Aubrey are one and the same and the words that she has been putting down on paper about the vampire community is true! The villainess in this story, Fala, wants her dead so she will stop writing about her kind, but Aubrey, returning Jessica's attraction, prevents her from doing so. Then, Anne's neck is snapped by a vampire sent from Fala in the church yard in broad daylight and Jessica wants revenge. She moves in with a line of witches and the woman she hates, Dominique Vida, most powerful witch and vampire hunter shows up and warns Jessica that if she chooses the vampires, she will not protect her. Jessica wanders into New Mayhem, the vampire community, twice in the book. After the first time, Aubrey kisses her. After the second, a vampiress gets into trouble and Aubrey has to leave Jessica alone for a minute. But when he comes back, Jessica is gone...and so is Fala. Will Aubrey be in time to save Jessica or will Fala kill her and stop Jessica's revealing literature? All will be revealed in: DEMON IN MY VIEW.

- "Attila: A Barbarian's Bedtime Story" is a true story about a young Hungarian boy living first in Hungary and then in America. It describes his struggles from growing up in a family that hated the Jews and discovering whom he was and what he would become. His life is change when he comes across a girl name Millie and both of them embarked in a journey to become free from their own self-critic and the world around them.
