REVIEW OF M C GEORGE ACHEN ST THOMAS MAR THOMA CHURCH OF

- What more can be said? Chesterton's writing style is glorious, and his subject matter here is profoundly important. I say this in an age that vastly prefers easier answers...in other words, an age that is no different from any other age. Chesterton's sentences ring like silver coins throughout this book. His theological ideas are grounded in human insight that, I daresay, is very hard to argue with. You may or may not become a Christian after reading this book; you may or may not return to a traditional Christianity either. But you will meet a great, sincere mind in these pages, and--I hope--be troubled in the best possible way by what you read.

- This book is Chesterton's defence of orthodox Christianity. It is partly autobiographical, in the sense that Chesterton describes various insights into the nature of reality, and various puzzles about reality, and then shows how (to his astonishment) the Christian faith accounts for the insights and answers the puzzles. The following quote expresses this idea: "This, therefore, is, in conclusion, my reason for accepting the religion and not merely the scattered and secular truths out of the religion. I do it because the thing has not merely told this truth or that truth, but has revealed itself as a truth-telling thing. All other philosophies say the things that plainly seem to be true; only this philosophy has again and again said the thing that does not seem to be true, but is true. Alone of all creeds it is convincing where it is not attractive; it turns out to be right, like my father in the garden." But don't just take my word for it! You can read it online from the G.K.Chesterton web page and then buy the book!
