The Accounting and Review Services Committee (ARSC) has issued Statement on Standards for Accounting and Review Services No. 21, Statements on Standards for Accounting and Review Services: Clarification and Recodification. The issuance of SSARS No. 21 represents a major milestone in the ARSC's project to clarify and revise the standards for reviews, compilations, and engagements to prepare financial statements. To assist readers to easily locate information, a detailed table of contents is provided at the beginning of the SSARS. This statement recodifies and supersedes all outstanding SSARSs through No. 20, except SSARS No. 14, Compilation of Pro Forma Financial Information. SSARS No. 21 is effective for reviews, compilations, and engagements to prepare financial statements for periods ending on or after December 15, 2015 but early implementation is permitted. This statement is a standalone SSARS and is not a codification of all clarified SSARSs. This statement has been codified in AICPA Professional Standards, which contains a complete codification of Statements on Standards for Accounting and Review Services. Practitioners are advised to use the codified version of this SSARS as they prepare to evaluate and update their methodologies, and prepare for changes precipitated by the clarity project.

How do we ensure that waste and inefficiency do not undermine the mission of publicly funded schools? Derek Neal writes that economists must analyze education policy in the same way they analyze other procurement problems. Insights from research on incentives and contracts in the private sector point to new approaches that could induce publicly funded educators to provide excellent education, even though taxpayers and parents cannot monitor what happens in the classroom. Information, Incentives, and Education Policy introduces readers to what economists know—and do not know—about the logjams created by misinformation and disincentives in education. Examining a range of policy agendas, from assessment-based accountability and centralized school assignments to charter schools and voucher systems, Neal demonstrates where these programs have been successful, where they have failed, and why. The details clearly matter: there is no quick-and-easy fix for education policy. By combining elements from various approaches, economists can help policy makers design optimal reforms. Information, Incentives, and Education Policy is organized to show readers how standard tools from economics research on information and incentives speak directly to some of the most crucial issues in education today. In addition to providing an overview of the pluses and minuses of particular programs, each chapter includes a series of exercises that allow students of economics to work through the mathematics for themselves or with an instructor's assistance. For those who wish to master the models and tools that economists of education should use in their work, there is no better resource available.

REVIEW OF 2016 AICPA NEWLY RELEASED QUESTIONS AUDITING SILOOO

- William Golding's book, The Lord of the Flies, is a very interesting and chilling story. The plot of the story is that a group of English boys become stranded on a deserted island from a plane crash. The boys try to gather food, construct shelter, hunt, and make smoke signals for boats to rescue them. Ralph is the oldest of the boys, and he is elected chief of the group of children. Ralph tries to put responsibility in the gang of boys, so they don't just eat, play, and swim all day. Piggy is Ralph's advisor. He is a little chubby, and his "specs" come in handy to light fires as signals to passing ships. Jack is the leader of a group of face painted hunters. He becomes a large nuisance to Ralph's idea of order and responsibility. Jack lures many of the boys to hunt with him. Through this turn of events, there are no shelters being made and the signal fire is not being tended to. Everyone is just hunting pigs all day. This fall of Ralph's plan becomes a large problem, and Ralph realizes that instead of being a hunter, he is the one being hunted.

- I am curious to know how old you were when you've read the book, "Lord of the Flies."
