REVIEW OF PAPER PRINCESS

- I thought this book was amazing. It was one of my most favorite books. I felt like Francie became a distant friend. I felt her hardship, and I felt sad for her, too. She was a poor girl living in Brooklyn in an extremely hard time. I was astounded when Betty Smith said that Katie, her mother, liked

Neeley, her brother, more than her. Thank god I had never had that happen to me, but it really hurt me when that was said in the book. I felt terrible when Francie's father died, he was her only support, she could always fall back down on him, and then boom, he died. So sad. She was so helpless, yet so strong. She was a wilted flower that still had the potential to live. Betty Smith gave Francie a very realistic role in the book, as she did all the other characters. She built them up beautifully, so you felt you really knew them, at least I did. The story was like a jigsaw puzzle that wasn't missing any pieces.

- I really liked the story of the Nolens I thought they were a strong family. I did not like how it skipped around in the timeline. I thought it was so sad when Johnny died, I cried. Then when Sissy took in the baby, then had her own I was so happy! Overall very good!
