REVIEW OF VETERINARY INTERNAL MEDICINE JOURNAL

- Great Item Exactly as described! My wife LOVES 1st Editions, and this was a feather in the ol' cap!

- As a result of a police sting Dr. Jack Lewiston is apprehended and accused of being the psychopathic killer known as "Jack the Ripper" who was murdering and mutilating prostitutes in New York City. During the course of his being examined by a police psychiatrist who bears a striking resemblance to him, Jack kills the doctor and assumes his identity, escapes to London. The New York City police are corrupt and selfishly wish to keep the escape a secret. They authorize Henry Marboro to go to London to bring back Lewiston dead or alive. Marboro had been forced into retirement while he was investigating the case of the murdered prostitutes, one of whom was his sister. Eventually Lewiston becomes the assistant to London's medical examiner and tries to find a normal relationship with the examiner's daughter, Prescilla. However, his appetite for murder and mutilation are overpowering. He leaves a path of mayhem. Marboro tracks Jack from London's East Side to posh London where he meets and falls in love with nurse, Loraine Broderick. Jack plays cat and mouse with Henry, the police and the public with taunting, boastful letters to the press. When he realizes that Marboro is too close he kidnaps Loraine and forces a confrontation with Marboro. In the ensuing struggle, Jack is shot and plunges into the river. The police believe that the decomposed body found in the river later is that of Jack which closes the case. Or does it? The action is fast paced; the suspense building to a peak to the finale. The characters are well-drawn. The details of Jack's murders and mutilations are graphic and gruesome, not for the faint hearted reader. There is explicit sex. Both of these while explicit are necessary to the story. Flowers has captured the sights and sounds of New York City and London's East End in 1888. You can feel the squalor of the city and the deprivation and desperation of the people. He maintains a fine balance in the narrative of the first person (Marboro) and the third person (Lewiston). He delves into the demented mind of Lewiston with his love/hate obsession with his mother. In his departure from contemporary thrillers, Flowers has given us a compelling and powerful account of Jack the Ripper. This is another theory of "Who was Jack the Ripper"? Flowers makes a strong case in his presentation.
