The book struck as a powerful reminder that there is not a better world than that the one we live in, for there would be no happiness if it were the same as the Community, and no feelings. Without feelings, we are not human, and the people in this book scared me that some day there really may be a place that comes around here or in some other life where there are no feelings, color, or, most importantly, love. I also recommend, Harry Potter, The Lord of the Rings and The Price of Immortality

- I completely forgot about this book until I heard someone mention it one random day. Then I remembered that I had read it in 7th grade. This book was still great the second time around! The author does an incredible job of describing the scenes throughout the story. You are in touch with the main character Jonas, you feel what he is going through. I especially liked when Jonas first discovered colors, and how he was now viewing his life, and community. The story makes you wonder if we as humans are missing out on something really special in the our world. Just like Jonas had when he first realized love, and how his community didn't know how to understand the concept.
