REVIEW OF THE MOTIVATION TO WORK BY FREDERICK HERZBERG

- In 1887 Green Valley, Colorado, gunslinger Clint Beaudry offers twice the usual fee for a room in widow Matilda St. Clair's boarding house. Although she can use the money, Mattie refuses to lease to him because she will not allow hired guns inside her house. Clint leaves, thinking back over the past year in which he chases the assailant who raped and murdered his wife Emily. Although he wants to die, Clint needs to kill his spouse's murderer. Meanwhile Mattie thinks back ten years ago to her husband, the sheriff, who was killed and she wants nothing to happen to their child. The next day, a gunslinger shoots Clint in the back. He is taken to the boarding house where Mattie nurses him back to health. As she observes Clint, especially with her son, she realizes he is a caring person. They fall in love, but he still leaves on his vengeance quest, proving love is not enough for this couple unless he can come to his senses quickly. With novels like DIME NOVEL HERO and MAIL-ORDER BRIDE, western romance fans know that a Maureen McKade novel is going to provide plenty of excitement and enjoyment. Her latest tale, OUTLAW BRIDE, is another triumph as the fragile love between a gunslinger and an anti-gun widow faces a high noon scenario. Readers will empathize with Mattie trying to keep her son safe while hoping that Clint allows love to heal his soul. This entertaining tale will speed up Ms. McKade's rapid ride to the top of the sub-genre. Harriet Klausner

- Though it was written more than two centuries ago, Surgeon's wit, use of scripture and practical wisdom make this book a must read for anyone who is currently in or considering ministry as a calling.
