REVIEW OF BUILDING A RESTFUL WEB SERVICE WITH SPRING PACKT BOOKS

• Because many of the stories Pellegrino told appeared in no other books, including the British and American Inquiries into the sinking, I and other Titanic Historical Society members bought into the widely-voiced notion that Pellegrino's facts were "all made up." As it turns out, he and Walter Lord have over the years assembled an entire library of unpublished expedition logs and survivors' accounts, the full contents of which were recently reproduced for THS and Earthship tv. Referring to the accounts as "a real eye-opener," THS historian Don Lynch, who recently sailed with Pellegrino on James Cameron's 3-D Imax filming expedition to the Titanic, found the author to be a true seeker, blessed with hyper-energy and an undying sense of wonder that makes him seem at times like an overgrown child, "if not occasionally like a class 1-A pain in the neck... but a lovable pain in the neck". As for the availability of the library, Pellegrino has begun to post it on his web site, fully annotated, and downloadable by an "honor system" by which readers will hopefully send donations to the Michael J. Fox organization for Parkinson's disease research (where Fox makes sure that every dime goes directly to research). This tells me everything I need to know about Pellegrino and the Titanic.

- This book is truly another masterpiece by the master himself, Richard Webster! I have begun reading this book since the day it came out and now, after finishing it, I feel like I have always denied myself of something that I could have used to make my life easier and better. If I would have known about Creative Visualization in my teens, then I know I would have all my dreams realized by now in my 20's. Creative Visualization is something everyone can do and apply it into their everyday life to help realize their dreams and goals! Many fun-filled exercises are included in this book to practice Creative Visualization. As with any Richard Webster book, you will certainly enjoy this one and will not be disappointed!
