REVIEW OF HOW TO START WRITING A PAPER

- I rated The Giver a 4 star because I like fiction books and The Giver kinda has a fairy tale twist to it. I didn't like the extra star that I didn't vote for is because I thought it was more of a young adult book. The main subject in the book is when Jonas' family takes care of a little boy named Gabriel and then Jonas runs away with him. Then him and Gabriel run away to this village.

- I thoroughly enjoyed reading this book. It caused me to think about issues that I do not normally think about. It also provided an entirely different viewpoint than any that are available in the world today. The book showed benefits and flaws to a controlled system, one that many people think could work, given a chance. Some of the issues presented in the book, had not even crossed my mind as being a problem or a solution, such as the formation of the family unit and the generalization of age by having one day on which people advance in age. The Giver also showed what it would be like to experience certain concepts and emotions for the first time, something I enjoyed tremendously. Love, anger, hate, suffering; all of these things were discussed in this book with a kind of clarity that no one who had grown up with them could possess. This book is a must-read for anyone who enjoys being provoked into thought. It is easy to read, with moderate vocabulary, but is incredibly well-written.
