REVIEW OF GITMAN CH 8 MANAGERIAL FINANCE SOLUTIONS

- by ChereArin is having the dream again. He always knows if she will be here by the smoke on the mountain. He isn't allowed to touch her during a dream. She is crying now. She tells him that her parents are dead and her Great-Uncle will soon be coming to take her and her brother away. She will begin her training as a Wind Walker as soon as her uncle takes her. She has never told him her name. While they are talking, Arin sees a man with gray hair approaching. He grabs his friend and takes her away. He wakes up screaming and his father, Commodore Marcus Dorwen, comes running in Arin's room. Arin knows that he was adopted. His father now decides that Arin is old enough to learn the truth. It turns out that Arin is Ayanlak and that his father grabbed him during a sacrifice. Arin was being sacrificed. Some Ayanlak were getting ready to drop Arin into a flame, he still bears the scar on his arm caused by the fire. The Ayanlak were on this world when the Humans came in their ships. The Humans were forced to land and there has fighting between the two races ever since, mainly caused by the Humans. They are trying to take over more and more of the planet. The Ayanlak live much simpler lives. The Humans treat them as sub-Human. It is years later now, and Arin has studied and become an engineer. His adopted mother died and he is very close to his father. His assistant, Jolif, is Ayanlak and is the best friend Arin ever had. The two have even become blood-bonded. Arin is sent to a town to build a bridge over a river. Tayree and her twin, Talon, have become Wind Walkers. She was being pursued by the twin-heir, Palan. Tayree sensed the evil in him and turned him down. Eventually, he tried to rape her and didn't succeed because of her brothers. She married her twin's best friend in order to safe from Palan. It didn't work. Palan poisoned her three sons, and killed her Chaiqua (an animal that protects the nobly born and Wind Walkers). When Tayree's husband learned of the death of their sons, he went after Palan

and both of them ended up going over a cliff together. Tayree is still mourning her loss. She has a dream that the other twin-heir is still alive and living with the Na'Huma. She is sent to the Na-Humas to find him and teach him all she can of the Ayanlak way of life during their trip back to her people. When she finally finds him, he is an identical twin to Palan. She sees her enemy's face every time she looks at him. Arin meets Tayree and begins to fall in love with her. It turns out that Arin was stolen from his parents and they miss him dearly. He finally gets permission from his Uncle to accompany Tayree back to the Canyon to his parents. And so they begin their trip back, facing danger at every step. Arin never really fit in with the Humans as a child. He was never really accepted as one of them. So, he turned all his energies into becoming an engineer. He is hoping that his high placement in their government will help him to fit in. He lived his whole life believing that he was never really wanted. After all, his parents were going to sacrifice him. When he finally learns the truth, he is shocked. He has always had the ability to "talk" to animals and influence them and has tried to hide this his whole life. Now, he begins to understand some of this and is anxious to learn all he can about the Ayanlak and their way of life. He also recognizes Tayree as the girl he saw in his dreams as a child. He begins to fall in love with her and hates what his evil twin did to her. He is afraid that she will never be able to overcome this. Jolif

is a good friend to Arin. He is really the only friend that Arin has. When Tayree comes and Arin learns the truth about himself, it is Jolif that helps him to accept what he is. Tayree is a Wind Walker. She has trained for this and it is her whole life. Her duties as a Wind Walker are the most important thing to her. She has been hurt badly and has yet to heal. She knows what is expected of her and really doesn't want to do it. Eventually, she begins to see the man that Arin has become. She still sees Palan in his face and knows that friends are all they will ever be. I love the way that Indian legend and folklore is woven all through the story. This one is quite different from of Michelle Levigne's Commonwealth stories. There is no space travel during the course of this story. This one takes place all on one planet. The characters in the story are all very well rounded and the world as described is incredible! I loved the way that Arin had to learn to overcome the prejudice that faced him, first among the Humans and later among the Ayanlak because of Palan. This is a wonderful story full of adventure and myth and racial strife. This is one you definitely don't want to miss.

- DON'T BUY THIS BOOK---IT IS A TOTAL WASTE OF BOTH TIME & MONEY. I side with Starbucks 110%. Dorosin is unreasonable and is using a situation that Starbucks tried to remedy for his own personal gain. Dorosin should put his energy into better causes and stop trying to promote himself and his poorly written book.
