REVIEW OF PRE INTERMEDIATE FOURTH EDITION

- There are only two type of people in the world. Those who have read 1984, and those that should. That's all the recommendation I'm going to give, as either you've heard of this book or there's no hope for you at all. Buy it, borrow it, steal it ... whatever it takes, all thinking people owe it to themselves to experience Orwell's classic. So I'm not going to summarize the book, it's that much of a classic. If you don't have some dim idea of what Big Brother represents, my review isn't going to help you. Instead, I want to talk about my impressions, my ideas, and my thoughts about this amazing vision. I think that Orwell's book is gaining more relevance in the modern American world, and that's a really frightening thought. We live in an age of the Patriot act, which allows the government to monitor its citizens in what they do, allowing unprecedented access to private information. Yet, what is a patriot? An individual who performs exemplary service to their government as an ideal ... yet, the first patriots were criminals. They were hunted for rebellion or for spreading harmful propaganda against the British monarchy. Now we have a government that could theoretically punish 'patriots', yet calls up images of protection and defense ... I don't know about you, but that sounds like doublethink to me. We live in the age of newspeak. Police actions instead of wars, government jargon instead of truth ... decidedly, we have been so blindsided by the new language of the administration that it is hard to understand just what is meant by what they say. And this has been the truth of all administrations since early in this century. Not a new thing, but it is getting worse. All jargon does is obscure the truth. With the fog of language separating reality from speech, honesty becomes impossible. Autonomy is dead. Individuals cannot operate in our society. It has been set up that only groups and parties can exist, and individuals are drowned out in the voices of larger parties. People are given their say, and that say is to continue their slavery. People as a society do not know how to shrug off the status quo. Thus, democracy does not know how to shrug off the status quo. The people don't know what's good for them, and that creates the situation of 1984. There is a simple truth ... if people didn't want to be oppressed, they wouldn't be. The public is too many, the oppressors too few, but democracy rules and we are oppressed because we allow ourselves to be. The future is in the proles, but the situation is still the same, and they do nothing. And what solution does Orwell give us? A possible awakening of the proles years and years from now, maybe. But other than that, there seems to be no end to the trap. Indeed, I think the only freedom is that offered not by Orwell, but by Huxley in Brave New World. But that's a story for another day ... I urge you to read this book, and above all to think about it, and form your own opinions. Because individualism is the only freedom we have left. And to give it up is to become the enemy of all intelligence, freedom, and hope.

- Because if he were alive, I would gladly murder him. That's how much I hated this book. Never has a story angered me so much. Never have I felt so livid towards a set of characters. Never have I felt so utterly depressed, hopeless, and betrayed. All of this, of course, can only mean one thing. It's the greatest book I have ever read in my life. The truths are so beautifully structured that it brings one to tears. There's no doubt that Mr. Orwell could have been the most miserably, bitter, and lonely SOB to ever walk the face of the Earth. No, much of this book did in fact turn out to be fiction, but I take little comfort in that. There's still just enough truth in it about the human condition to make me want to step into the bathroom and slit my wrists. Yes ... oh yes! EVERYBODY NEEDS TO READ THIS BOOK. This is what we are folks. This is human nature. It may not have happened yet, but the race is young. How much time do we have? Another hundred ... two hundred years? Our only hope, I think, is that maybe a huge asteroid will hit the earth and destroy the entire planet before the year 2050. That's my hope, because after reading this book, quite frankly, I no longer have any hope in anything else. Travis
