REVIEW OF MLA FORMAT RESEARCH PAPER OUTLINE

- This book is about a group of boys whose plane is shot down on a deserted island. They are also the only survivors on the whole plane. This novel takes place in the late 1990's. The boys are forced to live on their own, and do whatever is possible to keep them alive. Obviously, everything isn't working out just the way they would have liked it to, and they have to face many troubles along the way. Later on in the book, the boys end up turning on each other. I enjoyed reading how they interacted in such a tough situation. I could never imagine what I would do in that type of situation, and hearing how other people reacted was neat. Nobody would ever think something like this could happen, and very few people would be able to survive living alone on a deserted island. It shows the reality of a true human society because people really are selfish and cruel and will do anything to look out for themselves. It really makes you think about human instincts. Soon after, when you are under the pressure of survival you will end up emotionally breaking down, and doing what is best for you, and only you. I think this book would be most suitable for a teenage, adventurous boy. Lord of the Flies is one of those books that keeps you wondering what will happen to the boys next, and you keep on reading. Because of its intriguing plot of survival of a young crowd, the book was hard to put down.

- I urge everyone to read all of the Dortmund series of novels. They are the funniest books in print(or out of print) that you will read.
