REVIEW OF TECHNICAL KNOWLEDGE FOR SERVICE ADVISORS

- The Artist by his/her very definition is a sensitive soul whose ability to have a rich inner life allows the creative spirit endless resource to expression. HOWEVER, that same sensitivity is prone to avoidance when one faces a destiny so great they fear themselves. The solution is to create drama in your life rather than in fiction novels. This takes many forms such as caretaking, codependance, etc ... anything to distract you from destiny. This latest Cameron cartoon renditin is comical and delivers a ironic warning on the perils of avoiding your art.

- The mean-spirited snorking of conservatives in response to THE BUSH DYSLEXICON made it a must-read for me. It was a clear signal that Miller might have hit a home run loaded with truth into the rightfield bleachers. I read it and found that he, in fact, hit a grand slam. I strongly urge every American to read it; it should be required reading in every school and university in the nation! Anyone who recognizes the historical significance of the Constitution, knows how vital that hard-won document is to our individual rights and freedoms, and, most important, knows what is required in and of a leader to respect and protect it in an increasingly complex world, will be alarmed by this insightful analysis of our president's scrambled thinking and utterings. Miller uses W's own words to show that we are, indeed, as was so eloquently put by George I, "in deep doodoo." Individually comical or pathetic, Bushisms in sum reveal a level of ignorance and incompetence that is terrifying. That they come out of the mouth of a 21st century U.S. president, raises serious questions about the viability of our nation. Frontman Bush and the snarling crowd behind him are not only an international embarrassment, they're a distinct threat to democracy and the American way of life. Mark Crispin Miller's treatise is a Thomas Paine-like call to action. Please, read it!
