Which School? Philip Allan

In the past thirty years, historians have broadened the scope of their discipline to include many previously neglected topics and perspectives. They have chronicled language, madness, gender, and sexuality and have experimented with new forms of presentation. They have turned to the histories of non-Western peoples and to the troubled relations between "the West" and the rest. Allan Megill welcomes these developments, but he also suggests that there is now confusion among historians about what counts as a justified account of the past. In Historical Knowledge, Historical Error, Megill dispels some of the confusion. Here, he discusses issues of narrative, objectivity, and memory. He attacks what he sees as irresponsible uses of evidence while accepting the art of speculation, which incomplete evidence forces upon historians. Along the way, he offers succinct accounts of the epistemological road historians have traveled from Herodotus and Thucydides through Leopold von Ranke and Alexis de Tocqueville, and on to Hayden White, Natalie Zemon Davis, and Lynn Hunt.

REVIEW OF PEARSON EDEXCEL ESHER

- In this handsome journal, we are treated to Ken Ross' exquisite photographs taken during his many world travels. His sharp eye and heartfelt connection with diverse cultures are keenly reflected in his work. Striking color, subtle humor and poignant moments are there for all to experience. Add to this the richness of inspiring, thoughtful quotes from his mother, Elisabeth Kubler-Ross (and a few international proverbs) and you have a very delightful gift for yourself or for someone special to you. An added bonus is that the binding allows it to lay flat for ease of writing. A treat, indeed!

- Naked Singularity is brilliant, a true classic, and a work of art. The most interesting aspect is the protagonist's complete blindness to her subconscious drive, revenge on the male figure and the whole family, as well as her super intellectual faade which barely veils an absolute weakness and desperate need to be liked and loved.
