REVIEW OF DETROIT AN AMERICAN AUTOPSY

- I think that the review posted for this book is exceedingly unfair. What Buckley tries to do is clear away some of the hypocrisy that has surrounded modern writing about ancient history. For generations books have been written by regurgitating the narratives of a few primary sources: Herodotus, Thucydides, Xenophon, et al. Buckley puts this process in the foreground and allows teachers to amplify and to correct by appealing to inscriptions, coins, less "privileged" narratives and so forth. This is a dynamic text, which is really alone in a sea of pompous writers who aspire to the true account of what "actually happened" and don't want to let students in on the process. I fully intend to use this text in a course surveying Greek history. Everyone gets some details wrong, but I admire the basic honesty of this text.

- Klein and Chairello have authored a well written and informative book on a craft of comics/ graphic story telling vastly ingnored UNTIL the advent of digital technology. BOTH sections COLORING & LETTERING will be the watermark for other authors to achieve. The COLORING section addresses the AESTHETIC side of the craft along with the MECHANICS behind it. I have other books on the craft of comics: 1. Read this book FIRST, apply the concepts to your own work; THEN read OTHER books related to coloring/lettering. 2. Look at NATURE to get color ideas, read magazines, bus ads and observe typeface designs. 3. CREATE YOUR OWN FONTS!!!
