REVIEW OF LARSON EDWARDS CALCULUS 9TH EDITION SOLUTIONS

- Like most businessmen and active political players, I have my doubts about a number of things. All of which comes about from just living it out and seeing things and doing things that in reflection harden us all. Perhaps those of us in the fast lane( the so-called doers of society )think we are a little better than others and so while we celebrate Christ as our lord, we don't practice our Christian beliefs well because his life is hard to pragmatically document and define in a literal real world way. Ever notice how the folks who travel more of a humble path seem to love the lord more than we so-called mover and shakers? We aren't bad folks, we are just busy and our world usually won't allow for the open and absolute love of Christ because again how do you really prove it? I never doubted my love for Christ and his teachings, I just failed to spend enough time trying to follow the teachings and love of the Lord. I, like many, believed in Christ but found it hard to PROVE Christ was the son of God and our Savior. In a pure business or political argument, it just didn't seem to be clear how Christ and all his teachings could be pragmatically advanced. I have special and wonderful Christian and God induced moments of true and real intervention in my life. Yet these are private moments that, while absolute, could be argued away by anyone else as NOT PROVABLE! Now along comes James R. Mills exceptional book Memoirs of Pontious Pilot. This former California State Senator and major political figure has written a book that is a must read for folks like me. People in the fast lane who demand pragmatic, reasoned and literal thought to mandate any action of business or political life. Mill's has really provided a service to the hard edged types who love the lord but look for further PROOF. He has provided us with a historically accurate argument for the life and times of Christ from the eyes of a man who allowed Christ's death to happen. WOW! Please read this book and pass it a long to your fellow (in your face, I'm to busy for all of this) real world friends. It will help us all better understand the glory of Christ's life and the meaning of Christ's life in our pragmatic, prove it to me world. Respectfully and Gratefully Submitted, Tom C. Stickel, Coronado, California.

- This is a fun book to advance your programming and Java skills a bit. The strength of this book is not that it has complete code for 10 projects. It is that each of these projects have nearly unlimited potential for adding in features. Take the aquarium for instance. I added in a simple GUI popup to control how many fish, their individual speeds, supports unlimited fish photos, change backgrounds, add in whales, sharks, dolphins crabs, ect. In addition, the shark can randomly pick a fish every so often and eat it, along with sounds from Jaws. Next I am going to add in fisherman and divers. The great thing is that all of the projects are this way. Even if you are not inclined to extend the projects, there is still a lot to learn from the basic projects. There is complete source code on the book's web site. BTW, the Aquarium does not feature multithreaded fish. Each fish is not a thread. There is exactly one explicit thread in the program.
